SYSTEMS OF ENSURING REUSE OF PACKAGING

A. Reusable packaging systems are:

1. Closed system - a system in which reusable packaging is put into circulation by a person or an organized group of persons;
2. Open system - a system in which reusable packaging is put into circulation between unspecified persons;
3. Mixed system - a system consisting of two parts:
 - a) reusable packaging that remains with the end user for whom there is no redistribution system leading to commercial refilling,
 - b) single use packaging to be used as an ancillary product for the transport of contents for refilling the packaging.

B. Criteria for ensuring a reusable packaging system

The requirements for reusable packaging are set by a combination of the requirements for the packaging itself and for the reusable packaging system in which it is functional.

1. Criteria for a closed system:

- a) the reusable packaging is permanently owned by a person or an organized group of persons;
- b) the packaging is repeatedly placed on the market by the person or organized group of persons who owns it;
- c) the design type of the packaging is determined according to the specifications agreed by the participants in this system and is also used according to these specifications;
- d) systems for the collection and redistribution of such packaging are in place at the appropriate collection point;
- e) persons or organized groups of persons shall be obliged to take back reusable packaging that has been used in accordance with the agreed specifications;
- f) all persons placing packaging on the market shall provide information on the use of the packaging and the places where the packaging may be left for reuse;
- g) a control system is used on the basis of an agreed specification agreed between the participants in the system

2. Criteria for an open system:

- a) the user of the packaging can decide for himself whether the packaging will be reused;
- b) reusable packaging is always owned by the person who is currently using it;
- c) the design type of the packaging is determined according to generally accepted specifications;
- d) the recovery of the reusable packaging may be provided by the user of the packaging or is available on the market;
- e) systems for the collection and redistribution of such packaging may be at an appropriate collection point;
- f) a control system based on a generally accepted specification is used

3. Criteria for a mixed system:

- a) the reusable packaging always remains with the end-user, is in his possession and is refilled with it using an auxiliary product (replacement packaging);
- b) ancillary products (replacement packaging) are available on the market;
- c) all persons placing packaging on the market shall provide information on how to reuse (refill) the reusable packaging.
